Klasko Immigration Law Partners Welcomes Kevin Vo to Washington, D.C. Team

Klasko Immigration Law Partners, LLP is pleased to welcome Kevin Vo to the Washington, D.C. team as a Law Clerk pending admission to the bar in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and working under the supervision of admitted attorneys.

Kevin Vo is dedicated to helping clients navigate the complexity of the U.S. immigration system and approaches each case through a holistic lens. He brings a diverse range of experience in immigration law to Klasko, including work as a Student-Attorney at The George Washington University Law School Immigration Clinic, where he represented individuals seeking humanitarian benefits such as asylum and U-1 status.

At the U.S. Department of Justice, Kevin assisted trial attorneys in the Immigrant & Employee Rights Section with PERM recruitment investigations, Form I-9 audits, and immigration-based workplace discrimination complaints. He also served as a Law Clerk with the U.S. Senate Committee on the Judiciary, supporting an immigration policy portfolio, and advocated on behalf of detained and non-detained clients in removal proceedings during law school. Prior to law school, Kevin worked as a paralegal at a business immigration firm in Boston, helping employers and individuals secure a wide range of nonimmigrant and immigrant visas.

"Kevin's experience spans humanitarian, government, and business immigration work, which gives him a well-rounded perspective on the issues our clients face," said Timothy D'Arduini, Partner-in-Charge at the firm's Washington, D.C. office. "His background at the Department of Justice and on Capitol Hill, combined with his paralegal experience in business immigration, will be an asset to our team as he continues his career here."

Kevin will support the firm's corporate immigration teams across a range of matters, drawing on his experience with both humanitarian and employment-based immigration to help clients navigate an increasingly complex regulatory landscape.

"As our practice continues to grow, we're thrilled to welcome talented young lawyers like Kevin who bring both strong academic background and hands-on experience to the table," said William (Bill) Stock, the firm's Managing Partner. "His dedication to client service and his personal connection to the immigration process reflect exactly the kind of attorney we want representing our clients."
