Klasko Immigration Law Partners Welcomes New Associate Natalia Gouz To Its Expanding Team

Klasko Immigration Law Partners a top-tier employment-based immigration law firm is pleased to announce that Natalia Gouz has joined the firm as an Associate attorney. Natalia brings extensive experience on an array of both nonimmigrant and immigrant matters. From the most complex of cases involving temporary employment-based visas to assisting foreign nationals in obtaining permanent residency, Natalia is equipped to provide top-tier immigration solutions for her clients.

Natalia assists clients that span a broad spectrum of industries including the financial sector, information technology, telecommunications, higher education, healthcare, logistics, and hospitality. Before joining with Klasko Immigration, Natalia was practicing business immigration law in New York City. During that time, her client profile consisted of large multinational corporations, startups, small and midsize companies, as well as individuals. In her spare time, she volunteered to help unaccompanied immigrant children with free legal counsel through the Safe Passage Project.

Natalia graduated from New York Law School (J.D.), where she served as the Staff Editor for the school's publication, the New York Law School Law Review. Before entering law school, Natalia received her bachelor's degree in Political Science from Pace University. As of today, she is admitted to practice law in the state of New York and is a proud and active member of the American Immigration Lawyers Association.

Klasko Immigration is proud to welcome Natalia to the firm and encourages any individual or corporation looking for an experienced immigration lawyer to schedule an appointment with Natalia or another member of the team.
