Allie Dempsey is a Senior Associate in the firm's Philadelphia office. She is responsible for providing strategic and comprehensive business immigration solutions to the firm's corporate clients as well as for working with individuals of extraordinary ability to achieve their immigration goals.

Allie has significant experience with employment-based immigration matters, working with clients to navigate current trends to achieve their immigration goals. She regularly works with corporate clients to obtain nonimmigrant status for global talent, including H-1B, O-1, TN, and L-1, visas and has successfully guided clients through the immigrant visa process, helping professionals, advanced-degree individuals, and multinational managers and executives obtain permanent resident status in the United States. Allie also has considerable experience guiding highly-skilled individuals through the green card process via complex petitions for extraordinary ability (EB-1A), outstanding researcher (EB-1B), and national interest waiver (EB-2 NIW) classification.

Allie is motivated in her work by the knowledge that every immigrant to the United States, no matter their circumstances, has a personal story driving them to seek new opportunities in the United States. Prior to joining Klasko Immigration Law Partners, Allie practiced immigration law in a boutique firm setting in Philadelphia, providing comprehensive legal advice to corporate and individual clients on a range of immigrant and nonimmigrant matters. She has experience with naturalization, marriage and family-based immigration, and humanitarian matters.
