Karen M. Hill is a Senior Associate in the Firm's Philadelphia office, where she advises corporate clients on a broad range of business immigration matters. She provides strategic immigration counsel and tailored solutions to organizations ranging from emerging startups to multinational corporations.

With more than seven years of experience practicing immigration law, Karen focuses on employment-based immigration matters, including nonimmigrant visa classifications such as H-1B, H-1B1, L-1, TN, and E-3, as well as immigrant petitions for multinational managers and executives. She works closely with employers to develop comprehensive immigration strategies that support workforce mobility and long-term business objectives.

Karen is an active member of the American Immigration Lawyers Association (AILA) and serves in leadership positions at both the national and local levels. She currently holds roles on AILA National committees and within the AILA Philadelphia Chapter, where she was recently elected to the Chapter's Executive Committee. Karen is also a frequent contributor to the immigration law community through speaking engagements, presentations, and published writings.

Karen earned her Juris Doctor from Delaware Law School and her Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, cum laude, in International Business and Management from Kutztown University of Pennsylvania. She is admitted to practice law in Pennsylvania.
